Dance Under Full Moon

A flock of Washington square dancers hied themselves down Maryland way Saturday to the beautiful old estate of Maj. Gen. Howard C. Davidson. Cremona overlooks the Patuxent river, boasts considerable acreage for the raising of Black Angus cattle and has a charming old red brick Georgian dwelling that is described and pictured in the last National Geographic Magazine.

A Dutch treat picnic affair, members of one of the regular Tuesday square dance groups started out before 5 Saturday afternoon to drive the hour's distance away. The Noel Macy's boat, the Noefena, had put in at Gen. Davidson's place and some of the picnickers had cocktails on board with them; the rest on the green lawn between the house and the river.
